

Yes my dear,
we can talk to the dead...

All Souls Day

The origin of Halloween is traced back to the ancient Celtic religion in Ireland. The Celts, who were very conscious of the spirit world and how to gain access to it, created two annual celebrations; Beltane at the beginning of summer and Samhain (pronounced Sah-ween) at the end of summer.

It was their steadfast belief that Samhain was the only time of year when the veil between the world of the living and the world of the dead was the thinnest, which meant ghosts and spirits were free to wander the earth as they wished.

Unlike my predecessors, I find the veil to be thin throughout the entire year. Communicating with spirits appears to be a gift which, like my predecessors, I do celebrate. Just recently, after experiencing a reading a client wrote: "I thought my reading was calming. I felt chills on my arms and back of neck. I felt safe and very loved. I was nervous to come [for a reading] for the fear of something new. But now am so glad to have come."

If you have been thinking about reaching out to a deceased loved one, I am at your service. You may want to join our very intimate, safe and holding circle of ten, as we call forth the souls with whom we desire to connect and welcome them to engage in an evening replete with loving, caring, cross communication and amazing exchanges of energy.

In celebration of Samhain, I am offering a Halloween treat of $5.00, which you may apply to either:

Calling All Souls: Our (Tuesday evenings) circles which provide spiritual nourishment, hopeful encouragement and awesome enlightenment to all souls present; living and dead.

Reserve your place on Tuesday, October 6th or October 20th from 7:00 ~ 9:00 PM.

Private Reading: A 60 minute personal reading.

Or your own private Home Gathering of Souls: An intimate group circle in the comfort of your own home.

Listen to thyself and that still, small voice. You will know when you are ready. I hope to hear from you soon. Until then, don't look for them, see them.
